

BOYS' LIFE

EDITOR:
Robert Hood
MANAGING EDITOR:
Ernest Doclar
ART DIRECTOR:
Andrew Lessin
COPY CHIEF:
Muriel E. McGann
ART EDITOR:
Nicholas A. Cruz
ARTICLES EDITOR:
Louis Sabin
FICTION EDITOR:
Stanley Pashko
SPECIAL FEATURES EDITOR:
Jon C. Halter
ASSISTANT TO THE EDITOR:
Lillian K. Mussel
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS:
Frances Smith,
Movies, TV, Travel
Bill Hillcourt,
Scoutcraft
Glenn Wagner,
Hobbies
Al Stenzel,
Cartoon Features
DESIGN CONSULTANT:
Bob Crozier
PRODUCTION DIRECTOR:
Robert F. Limacher
ASST. PRODUCTION DIR.:
Marjorie L. Williams
DIRECTOR, DISPLAY ADV.
PRODUCTION:
Gene Allendorf
MGR., MAIL-ORDER ADV.
PRODUCTION:
Ilmar Pleer

BOYS' LIFE is published monthly by the Boy Scouts of America, North Brunswick, N.J. 08902. 50 cents a copy, $5.00 a year. Add 75 cents for Canada, Central and South America. $1.00 for all other foreign subscriptions. Special rates, to members of the Boy Scouts of America, through local council offices. Second-class postage paid at North Brunswick, N.J. and at additional mailing offices (PM 132-25 section g). Accepted for special postage provided for in 1103, Act of October, 1917, June 13, 1938, November, 1958. Volume LXIII, No. 1. © 1972 by the Boy Scouts of America. All rights thereunder reserved; anything appearing in Boys' Life may not be reprinted either wholly or in part without permission. Send stamped, self-addressed envelopes with unsolicited manuscripts. Boys' Life will not be responsible for manuscripts in its office or in transit. Postmaster: Send form 3579 to Boys' Life, North Brunswick, N.J. 08902.

CONTENTS

JANUARY 1973

ARTICLES

- 8 The Name of the Game Is Teamwork
Dave Cowens with Louis Sabin
- 28 Face to Face: Kids and Parents
E. D. Small
- 40 Cross-Country Skiing
Barbara Yost

FICTION

- 32 The Arrow Maker
Kerry Wood
- 36 The Center of Attention
Jack Ritchie

CARTOON FEATURES

- 54 Pedro Patrol
- 55 The Bible: Jonah
- 55 Rocky Stoneaxe
- 56 Pee Wee Harris
- 57 Scouts in Action
- 58 The Tracy Twins

REGULAR FEATURES

- 4 Hitchin' Rack
- 6 Hobby Hows
Glenn Wagner
- 12 Autos
Ed Janicki
- 18 Checkmate
Larry Evans
- 20 Conservation
George Laycock
- 22 Movies
Richard and Aljean Harmetz
- 26 Making the Scene
Stan Pashko
- 74 Stamps and Coins
- 76 Gifts and Gimmicks
- 84 Think and Grin

SPECIAL FEATURES

- 44 Nature's Wonders Are for Everybody
Perry C. Riddle
- 46 Three for the Wilderness
- 48 They Met to Save Yosemite
- 50 Citizens Who Save Lives
- 51 Blue and Gold Invitations
- 60 3-D Cardboard Posters
Glenn Wagner
- 63 Slide of the Month:
Pancake Stack
- 64 Cook's Clean-up Kit
John Taylor
- 67 Wrist Roll Pulley
- 68 Tips for Setting Up a Darkroom
G. J. Gray

72 PROGRAM HELPS

Page 8

Page 36

Page 44

Page 32

Page 40

Page 28

CREDITS: Cover photo, Marty Blumenthal; pp. 8-11, Marty Blumenthal and Costa Manos—Magnum; p. 20, Culver Pictures, Inc.; p. 22, The Bettmann Archive.

Scouting today's a lot more than you think

PUBLISHER:
Oliver S. Johnson
ASSOCIATE PUBLISHER—
ADMINISTRATION:
Lloyd Eberhart
ASSOCIATE PUBLISHER—
ADVERTISING:
Edward L. Kern
MARKETING AND PROMOTION DIRECTOR:
Robert L. Goldsmith
ASST. PROMOTION DIR.:
Richard Rosenblatt
SALES SERVICE MGR.:
Frank J. Rowe
ADVERTISING SALES—
BOSTON:
Jay Dorr
James Doty
NEW YORK:
James N. Greaney
William Granzen
Robert Kremer
ATLANTA:
William Browning
Frank Monger
Richard Waterhouse
CHICAGO:
John Langland
Hawley J. Egleston
Kirkwood Sampson
LOS ANGELES:
Frank X. Simonds
CIRCULATION PROMOTION:
Merritt L. Pace
SUBSCRIPTION DIRECTOR:
George A. Best

HONORARY PRESIDENT:
Richard M. Nixon
PRESIDENT:
Norton Clapp
CHIEF SCOUT EXECUTIVE:
Alden G. Barber
MAGAZINE COMMITTEE:
Hobart Lewis, Chairman
Philip C. Carling
John Mack Carter
Richard W. Darrow
Wm. Harrison Fetridge
William P. Grayson
Francis W. Hatch
James B. Kobak
Kenneth Dale McCormick
Herbert D. Maneloveg
Thomas S. Monson
Chester L. Posey
Vittz-James Ramsdell
Frank C. Rand, Jr.
Warren J. Reynolds
Robert W. Sarnoff
Lowell Thomas, Jr.

The Center of Attention

By JACK RITCHIE

He zigged when he should have zagged and we meshed.

Basketball is getting to be a big thing in Europe—even in Liechtenstein—and so Herr Brunner was really happy to see me report for practice.

He's a big man with a black mustache and he's head coach at this Gymnasium—which is what they call a high school in Liechtenstein. He looked me over and smiled. "Hogan, you have considerable height. Undoubtedly you are the product of selective breeding?"

He meant were my folks tall, which is true.

This student exchange thing started some time back and nobody seems to remember who's responsible, but what happens is that Stevenson High, back in the States, trades one student with Liechtenstein each year and this time I was the one who got tapped on the shoulder by the Selection Committee.

Liechtenstein is about 62 square miles, give or take a mountain, and the last time it got excited enough to join anybody in a war was over 100 years ago and even then it arrived late and got turned down.

"How long have you had a basketball team?" I asked.

"Nearly one complete month," Coach Brunner said. "Actually we are so newly organized that we have no opponents as yet. However, I have advertised in a Swiss newspaper and this should soon be rectified."

There were about 20 kids out there on the floor trying to make the team. A month ago none of them had ever seen a basketball and it showed. Not that they weren't trying hard. But I guess you've got to start handling a basketball long before you reach high school to really get the feel of it.

At the end of my first practice session, Coach Brunner nodded approvingly. "You are extremely adept, Hogan. Undoubtedly in the United States you were a star player?"

I bounced the ball on the floor a couple of times. "I had my moments." And then I guess I blushed.

Actually, back home I was a substitute and pretty much rear rank at that. The only time I ever got sent into a game was when Stevenson High was 15 points ahead with two minutes to play.

But I didn't see any point in bringing that up right now. I mean everything's comparative and if I looked good here, why rock the boat?

The next afternoon, Coach Brunner showed up waving a letter. "I have here a challenge from a private Gymnasium in Berne. By an incredible coincidence, it is from little Heinz."

"You, Hogan, are my secret weapon. With your height and your considerable skill at the position of center, I am certain we will demolish little Heinz and his Swiss invaders."

I had the impulse to cheer, but I held it down.

Arrangements were made with little Heinz and on the night of the game, I looked over the Berne team as it filed out of its locker room. It seemed to me that we had a slight height advantage,

To be or not to be a hero, that is this hero's problem.

"Hogan, I wish you to vacate the premises."

So who's little Heinz? I wondered.

He explained for the benefit of everybody. "Little Heinz and I were classmates in this very Gymnasium. He has since migrated to Switzerland for reasons of employment, though naturally, for tax purposes, he still retains his Liechtenstein citizenship." He smiled to himself. "Ah, little Heinz was always a sharp one, even as a schoolboy."

His eyes went back to the letter. "Little Heinz says that he too has organized a basketball team and it has been in existence for more than one year. This perhaps puts us at a disadvantage, but I am not discouraged." He looked my way and smiled.

except for one kid on the Swiss team. He was about as tall as I am.

Brunner looked a little worried, but then he shrugged. "So one of his players too has height. But he cannot possibly match your skill in only one year of practice."

Little Heinz turned out to be about five foot two and he had red hair. He came over and shook hands with Brunner. "We are here to do our feeble best." He looked at me suspiciously. "He is a tall one, no?"

Brunner acted as though he'd never seen me before in his life. "This one? Our center? He does have height. I will say at least this much for him. He

How many points does a man need to make him happy?

has been with us less than one month."

A smile came to Heinz's face. "Perhaps we could make a small wager on the outcome of this game?"

"No," Brunner said firmly. "I would lose my amateur standing."

Little Heinz seemed disappointed, but then he brightened. "Not for money, of course. I would never even think of this. But for something else. Just to make things more interesting." He seemed to think for a while and then he snapped his fingers. "Your magnificent mustache, perhaps?"

Brunner's hand went protectively to the article in question. Then he frowned. "You have always envied me my mustache, have you not? In your own attempts to achieve one, it results in a little red, a little black, and a little brown?"

Heinz nodded sadly. "And perhaps today, also a little gray." He pulled himself together. "If your team loses, you will shave off your mustache. And if my team loses, I will grow one. Surely you must have some confidence in your team?"

Brunner looked around at all of us who were listening hard and then realized he couldn't back down. "Very well, Heinz, so be it. My mustache, which exists, against yours, which does not."

After Heinz went back to his team, one of the officials handed Brunner a copy of the Berne line-up.

Brunner blinked as he read it. "Maglio, Harrington, Maddigan, Bryan, and Reilly? This is the Swiss team?"

"You were magnificent," Coach Brunner said, "and you must continue. My mustache is in your hands."

He rubbed the back of his neck. "Maglio probably comes from one of the Italian cantons of Switzerland. But Harrington, Maddigan, Bryan, and Reilly?" He looked at me for help.

I couldn't give him any.

His face darkened. "Little Heinz has stacked his team with four Americans. This points to disaster."

I couldn't argue with that, but I tried to cheer him up. "Back home, we never say die. That's the American Way."

Brunner nodded. "It is also the Liechtenstein Way, though we have never set it to music." He took a deep breath and spoke to the team. "Do not despair. Our opponents are not supermen. They are but human and enter their lederhosen one leg at a time."

When our team went out onto the floor, I used my best Liechtenstein-German to ask Maglio what canton he came from.

"Chicago," he said.

And so the game started.

But after a couple of minutes, I realized that things weren't going to be as bad as I thought.

What I mean is that here Berne also had Harrington, Maddigan, Bryan, and Reilly, but the four of them weren't much better—or worse—than our own Schoff, Diehl, Kohl, and Meunch. They kept bumping into each other a lot, too, and lost the ball just about as often as we did.

When the first quarter ended, the score stood at 24 to 22 in our favor, and the interesting thing was that I scored 23 of our 24 points.

(Continued on page 52) ➔

The Center

➔ (Continued from page 39)

Coach Brunner was both happy and worried by our two-point lead. He patted me on the back. "You were magnificent and you must continue this. My mustache is in your hands."

That got me to thinking. Twenty-three points in just one quarter? I'd never scored that much in a whole season before.

Man, at that rate I could collect 92 points in the whole game.

That ought to be some kind of a European record. Maybe even American? It ought to make the papers back home. Coach Richardson at Stevenson High might even decide that I really belonged on the first team after all. And he wouldn't keep forgetting my name.

I looked across the court at Maglio and saw that he had a dreamy expression on his face.

I suddenly realized that he could be thinking something along that line himself. He'd scored every one of his team's 22 points.

In the first four minutes of the second quarter, I dumped in three field goals. The only trouble was that Maglio kept pace and then some. He also racked up three field goals, plus one free throw.

It was going to be hard to keep ahead of him, what with his team feeding him the ball all the time.

On a missed pass, Schoff, one of our forwards, got the ball and brought it down near the Berne free-throw circle.

He took a shot and missed.

I shook my head. "I was open, Schoff. You should have passed off to me."

He glanced at the ceiling. "I was much closer to the basket and also in a more favorable position. You were to one side near the boundary of the court."

"Maybe," I said. "But I'm pretty good with sideline shots, and besides, you missed. We'd like to win this one, Schoff."

His eyes went to the ceiling again. "It had almost Look closely. This may be your only chance to see Tom Smith standing still.

Tom seems to pack more activity into a day than most of us can fit into a week. He's a senior at General Motors Institute. That means he alternates six weeks of study at the school's growing campus in Flint with six weeks of on-the-job learning at a sponsoring General Motors division.

While at school, his studies range from calculus and computers to business and its environment. He puts what he learns to good use at a Buick plant in Flint, where his job is to help control the inventory of the thousands of parts needed to maintain the machinery used to build cars.

In his "spare" time, he managed to become a trophy-winning wrestler. As fraternity president, he led his organization to many beneficial activities in the community. And as a leader of a school project, spent many hours monitoring and controlling sources of water pollution.

Tom Smith is representative of the kind of alert and active people who work and study at General Motors to help improve the quality of life for all of us.

If you think you'd like to join Tom at General Motors Institute, or maybe just learn more about it, write to Director of Admissions, General Motors Institute, Flint, Michigan 48502.

General Motors
Interesting people doing interesting things.

slipped my mind," he declared. At the end of the half, the score stood at 53 to 51, still in our favor. I had scored 49 of our points and Maglio 47 of his team's 51.

Coach Brunner patted me on the back again. "You are unquestionably the most outstanding player on the court. By at least two points."

He frowned at Schoff. "How many shots did you miss in this second quarter?" he asked.

Schoff swallowed. "Just one, sir. It was the only one I took."

Brunner turned to Diehl. "And how many shots did you take at the basket without success?"

"None, sir. I swear to this." Diehl looked up at the ceiling. "There was one free throw, but this was forced upon me by the officials," he said.

What was up there anyway? I looked at the ceiling too and saw nothing but the skylights and pulled-up climbing ropes.

"Gentlemen," Brunner announced. "From now on there will be absolutely no free-lancing. When one of you gains possession of the ball, he will pass it immediately to Hogan, so that he can make the score. It is through his excellence alone that we are winning the game."

I felt my face getting red, but not out of modesty.

All this time I'd been seeing Maglio getting the ball fed to him and not noticing—or wanting to notice—that the same thing was happening to me.

I closed my eyes. Here I came from the land of sportsmanship and I was hogging the ball just as bad as Maglio.

Something had to be done—world record in sight or no world record. I had to give the game back to the rest of the team and let them play—win, lose, or draw—though win or draw was a wild thought. Maglio was too good for them.

I would ask Coach Brunner to take me out of the game.

I looked at him and his mustache, and I winced.

No. I had that much sportsmanship, but not that much courage. I had to get out
(Continued on page 59) ➔

Standard with sunroof at no extra cost.

The Harley-Davidson Z-90. Nothing's changed over convertibles.

Nothing to tense you up or hold you back.

And only one Harley-Davidson.

The Z-90 has a drag-on handlebar.

Adjustable footpegs. Method of operation is not for mixing.

Four-speed. Automatic.

Headlighting. High-gloss fenders or painting at will. Double downshift frame.

Gear up right, then in a little freestyle. A Z-90. Ride in style on the standard. New-style Z-90.

Harley-Davidson.

At Harley-Davidson, 13101

Michigan Avenue, Harley-Davidson

AME
Harley-Davidson

Harley-Davidson Z-90. The Great American Freedom Machine.

The Center

➔ (Continued from page 53)

of the game some other way.

Fake an injury?

No. I wasn't much of a method actor. Back home I had a one-line part in a school play and fluffed that.

Foul out?

That was more like it. I already had one personal and if I set my mind to it, it shouldn't be too hard to get four more and be booted out of the game.

When the second-half whistle blew, I was out there with a dedicated smile on my face.

Diehl got the center tap, slow dribbled three steps, and then passed off to me.

I went straight down the court for the basket, but at the last second, I turned off slightly, heading for Maglio.

What I had in mind was to bump him just enough to earn a foul for charging. But he zigged when he should have zagged and we came together hard enough to spill us both on the floor.

He sat there looking a little bit bewildered.

I helped him to his feet and he got a sudden pained expression on his face.

Was he hurt? I hoped not.

I turned to the referee. "It was my fault. I was charging," I told him.

Maglio seemed to be studying the floor. "No, it was my fault. I got in his way."

"Now, Maglio," I said, "I know when I'm charging and I was charging."

But the referee disagreed with me and pinned the foul on Maglio.

When the Berne team got the ball again, Harrington, as usual, passed off to Maglio. He came dribbling in my direction and I closed in, figuring to hack at his arm just enough so that this time I would collect the foul.

But the way it turned out was that Maglio lurched into me before I could hack him and he was handed another foul.

What was he trying to do? Foul out of the game too?

Maglio called time out and went to the sidelines to speak to little Heinz.

(Continued on page 65) ➔

Want a piece of Revell's ACTIONSTAKES?

Look at the fantastic prizes. This is the real stuff!
Enter now and often. Your chances get better every time you enter!!!

1 of 3 AIR CYCLE® Land-Sea Vehicles

(Dune Buggy, Power Boat, Snowmobile all in One!)

1 of 2 HOBBIE "CAT" Sailboats

(Popular 25 mph 16' and
NEW one-man 12' versions)

WIN

The Baja 500 CHAMPION "Spark Bug"™

(Famous VW racer with Speed Equipment)

1 of 15 Complete BELL & HOWELL Super 8 Movie Outfits (Camera & Projector)

1 of 1000 PACTRA PAINT Sets

(Flat & Glossy Colors) with 400 6-packs and 600 3-packs
of Revell kits

TO ENTER: Send any Revell kit end panel (or 3" x 5" facsimile with REVELL printed in block letters), with your name and address on an official Entry Blank. Get one now in 15 specially marked Revell kits, on counter cards at your Revell dealer, or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Revell. Do it!

OFFICIAL RULES: No purchase necessary. Only one entry per envelope will be accepted. All entries become property of Revell, Inc. None returned or acknowledged. Winner will be determined in a random drawing from all entries received by Revell whose decisions will be final. Sweepstakes subject to local, state, and federal laws and void where prohibited. Tax liability is responsibility of winners. In accepting Air Cycle, Catamaran and Racer prizes, winners agree to assume responsibility for city and state licensing and registration requirements. No substitute prizes or cash equivalents given. In accepting awards, winners grant Revell the right to publicize and promote their winning of prizes. Employees of Revell, Revell distributors, dealers, or their immediate families are ineligible. Actionstakes closes May 31, 1973 (Postmark before midnight). No entries accepted after that date. Winners will be announced after September 1, 1973.

Send Entries To:
Revell, Inc. Actionstakes
P.O. Box 68366C
Los Angeles, CA 90066

The Center

➔ (Continued from page 59)

I took the break to get a drink of water on our side of the floor.

Maglio and little Heinz seemed to be in a conference. Finally Heinz nodded and Maglio trotted down the sidelines and into the locker room. It looked like he wasn't coming back because Heinz sent a substitute out onto the floor.

Coach Brunner frowned. "Heinz sends away his best man? I do not understand what is going on there."

I didn't either, but I cleared my throat. "I wouldn't exactly like to put it in writing, but it's just remotely possible that little Heinz is trying to pull off sportsmanship."

"Sportsmanship?" he asked.

I nodded. "Maglio's been hogging the ball the whole game and so it's obvious that nobody else on the Berne team is having any good clean fun. I'm just guessing, of course, but it's conceivable that little Heinz is trying to give the game back to the team."

Brunner let that sink in. "But why should little Heinz indulge in sportsmanship? It is not his nature."

I looked at the skylight for help and got it. "He might be trying for the Sportsmanship Trophy."

"Sportsmanship Trophy? What Sportsmanship Trophy?"

I sipped some water from the cup. "In the United States, we're always awarding Sportsmanship Trophies. Lots of times they go to coaches."

Brunner looked interested. "But who awards this trophy?"

"The game officials, I guess. When there is a trophy."

He touched his mustache tenderly for a moment and then studied me. "It pains me to mention this, Hogan, but when one speaks of ball-hogging, I believe that I have observed something of this in your own conduct on the floor."

I let my mouth drop. "Me? Ball-hogging?"

He glared for a second across the court at Heinz. "So little Heinz wishes to meddle with sportsmanship? Well, two can play this game as well as one." He turned back to me. "Hogan, as of this moment, you are out of the game."

"Aw!" I said.

He nodded. "I am sorry, but such is life and one must mature." He pointed toward the exit. "Go, Hogan, I wish you to vacate the premises as Maglio has done."

I took a fast shower and dressed. As I was leaving the building I almost bumped into Maglio coming in.

He seemed surprised to see me. "Is the game over already?"

"No," I said. "It's still in the third quarter."

He was a little out of breath. "I lost one of my contact lenses the first time we collided out there. And to make things worse, I accidentally stepped on it when you helped me to my feet. I thought maybe I could play without it, but it was no go."

So that explained why he'd lurched into me the second time.

He started taking off his jacket. "Luckily I had a spare in my luggage at the hotel. I decided to go for it myself. You know how it is when you send anybody else. They'd never find anything that small."

He was about to pass me.

I smiled quickly. "I just got to shake your hand."

He backed off a little. "What for?"

"For your sportsmanship," I said. "The way you took yourself voluntarily ➔

Fabulous FOLBOT HOLIDAYS

YOUR most rewarding hobby for Fall and Winter Fun is building one or more for family and friends

Now easily yours at little cost!

from $19 for BASIC KIT
16 feet 'Cayot'

photos from F. Cole, who writes:

"Family very pleased with Folbots, have now assembled five. Most remarkable is EASE of construction, every part is well prepared, ready to go together. Service from your company is excellent. Vacationing at beach, started assembly on picnic table at 4 p.m., completed structure at 10 p.m. Next afternoon the Deluxe Folbot was launched in Surf and Ocean. Assembly from Prefab Kit by myself was approximately 12 hours. Two weeks later, shot several complex waterfalls of Wilderness Stream for marvelous fun and sport (photo below). Thanks for your wonderful service and those fabulous Folbots."

Like thousands of happier Folboters you cruise, explore, sail, fish or hunt all year 'round, even during snappy weather in your COMFORTABLE Folbot... combining GRACEFUL action with TRANQUIL relaxation. Unlike others in sloppy open boats, flippy canoes or skimpy kayaks, YOU BENEFIT immensely from Folbot's covered decks, low gravity SAFETY and EXCLUSIVE swivel-back comfort with low and high seating. In SPACIOUS and SUPERIOR Folbot you relax securely and cruise EASIER with EFFICIENT blades. On INTIMATE waterways away from noise and trash, you still discover natural splendor along majestic scenery throughout America from the arctic to the tropics. ALL YOURS in VERSATILE Folbot at much lower cost and guided by Folbot's unique Holiday book, America's most elaborate with hundreds of BEAUTIFUL color photos, showing you HOW-WHEN-WHERE!

Indispensable for CAREFREE Nature Study, observation of fascinating Wildlife and EXCELLENT photography. Efficient Folbots, featherweight paddles, dacron sailrigs, without mechanical upkeep are INEXPENSIVE to maintain. From 1 to 4 seaters in desired colors or camouflage, either FOLDING type or PORTABLE cartop are SENSIBLY priced from $65 up with terms to suit, in PREFAB Kits for Fun at Home assembly or Factory Finished action color catalog

FREE
with STARTLING
FACTS and FIGURES

Mail coupon or address to:

FOLBOT CORP. BL173 CHARLESTON, S. C. 29405

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____
STATE _____ ZIP _____

out of the game when you realized that you were hogging the ball."

His eyes narrowed. "You think I took myself out of the game?"

It was big of you to give the game back to the team," I said. "Really big."

He frowned as he thought that over. "How come you're out of the game?"

I scuffed a foot on the floor. "When I saw what you'd done, I just had to follow your example," I told him.

I looked back toward the court. "So you came back to watch them play?" I smiled understandingly. "That was my idea too. To watch them play. But then I decided that even the sight of me in the stands might somehow make my teammates feel guilty. You know how it is when you do a whole team a favor?"

He chewed on his lower lip as he gave it more thought.

"There's a place just down the road that serves wonderful pizza," I said.

He sighed. "Can't stand pizza. But maybe we can find a place where they sell ice cream."

I didn't see Coach Brunner again until the next morning. He was clean-shaven.

He looked at me accusingly.

"There was no trophy."

I cleared my throat. "That happens sometimes. What was the final score?"

"55 to 54."

It had been 51 to 49 when I left the game at the beginning of the third quarter. "You mean that in almost an entire half, both teams together scored only nine points?"

He nodded. "In its own way, it was a thing of beauty."

I shook my head. "It's still a little hard to believe that all those Americans couldn't do any better."

"But Harrington, Bryan, Reilly, and Maddigan are not Americans."

I blinked. "What else could they be?"

"I learned after the game that they are exchange students from Dublin. This is in Ireland. And basketball is obviously not their national game."

I digested that. "Well, anyway we lost by only one point."

He smiled broadly. "Lost? But we won by this one point."

I stared. "But the mustache?"

"An impulse. This morning as I was shaving the other parts of my face, I suddenly realized that I had not seen my upper lip since my nineteenth birthday. And in a moment, it was done."

The next time I came across a mirror, I stopped and looked at myself. I wondered how I would look if I raised a—

I sighed. No. The Student Council here has put together a Dress and Appearance Code.

I'd have to settle for long sideburns. —

Catch any big ones this year? Send us a color snapshot along with your name, address, age, and waters where fish were caught. Who knows? You might see yourself in our next Zebco album of great fish.

Gary Von Bergen, Age 18
Largemouth Bass, 4 lb. 10 oz.
Ship Mine, Wilmington, Illinois

Charlie Roberts, Age 9
Largemouth Bass, 4 lb. 2 oz.
Shell Creek, Oklahoma

Tom Brachmann, Age 14
Rainbow Trout, 5 lb. 4 oz.
Pigeon River, Wisconsin

ZEBCO®

Reels and rods worthy of great fish.